

Shannon Langner, M.D., FAAFP

Assistant Professor
University of Colorado Family Medicine Residency
Denver, Colorado

Shannon Langner, M.D., FAAFP, is an assistant professor at the University of Colorado Family Medicine Residency. At this site, she serves as a clinician, teacher, and preceptor. She is also a faculty preceptor supervisor for the advanced maternity care track at the residency. In addition, Dr. Langner serves as a provider of full-scope Family Medicine including inpatient, outpatient, and obstetrical care. Special interests include women's health and procedures.

Dr. Langner earned her Doctor of Medicine degree from University of Kansas in Kansas City, and completed an ACGME-accredited internship and residency at the University of Colorado Family Medicine Residency. Fellowships include the Teaching Scholars Program through the University of Colorado and the Advanced Leadership Training Program through the Regional Institute for Health and Environmental Leadership. She is a board-certified physician through the American Board of Family Medicine.

Within the University of Colorado Hospital System, Dr. Langner is involved related to her practice interests of inpatient medicine, quality improvement, resident evaluation and safety, incentive planning, faculty, and resident recruitment. She is also actively involved in teaching and scholarly activities in residency training.