

Ben Taylor, PhD, PA-C

Clinical Faculty
Physician Assistant Department
Georgia Health Sciences University
Augusta, Georgia

Ben Taylor received a Master of Physician Assistant Studies from the University of Nebraska in Omaha in 1999 and a Doctorate of Health Services at Walden University in Minneapolis, Minnesota in 2006. He currently serves as a clinical faculty for the Physician Assistant Department and as a Senior Emergency Room Physician Assistant at the Georgia Health Sciences University in Augusta. He also practices at the Peach Tree Family Medical Clinic in Edgefield South Carolina and as Senior Physician Assistant with Doctors Care of Aiken, South Carolina.

Certified by the National Commission on Certification of Physician Assistants and the Georgia and South Carolina State Composite Boards of Medical Examiners, Dr. Taylor holds positions of prominence with several organizations. He is Vice President of the Association of Family Practice Physician Assistants (AFPPA) and also serves as a member of the AFPPA Conference Committee and Chairs the Public Education Committee for the AFPPA and the Georgia Association of Physician Assistants (GAPA). Additionally, Dr. Taylor serves on the Conference and Nomination Committees of the Georgia Association of Physician Assistants and the board of directors for both AFPPA and GAPA.

Dr. Taylor is a frequent lecturer, and he is a reviewer for the Journal of the American Academy of Physician Assistants.