

Beverly Moy, MD, MPH, Clinical Director, the Breast Oncology Program, the MGH Cancer Center, Massachusetts General Hospital; Assistant Professor in Medicine, Harvard Medical School

Dr. Moy is a medical oncologist at the Massachusetts General Hospital specializing in breast cancer. She received her undergraduate education at the Johns Hopkins University and her medical degree at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine. She completed her Internal Medicine residency training at Brigham and Women's Hospital and her hematology-oncology fellowship at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center. She received a Master's degree in Public Health at the Harvard School of Public Health. Her specific research interests include breast cancer clinical trials and racial and ethnic disparities in cancer care. She serves as the Chair-Elect of the American Society of Clinical Oncology's Advisory Group on Health Disparities and is also a member of their Ethics Committee.