

Emily Stamell Ruiz, MD, MPH is Director of the Dana-Farber/Brigham and Women's High-Risk Skin Cancer Clinic, an Associate Physician at the Mohs and Dermatologic Surgery Center at Dana-Farber/Brigham & Women's Cancer Center, and an Instructor in Dermatology at Harvard Medical School. Dr. Ruiz received her undergraduate degree from Duke University, her medical degree from New York University School of Medicine, and her Master of Public Health degree from Harvard School of Public Health. She completed an internship in internal medicine at New York University School of Medicine, a dermatology residency at Albert Einstein College of Medicine, and a fellowship in Micrographic Surgery and Dermatologic Oncology at Brigham and Women's Hospital. Dr. Ruiz's research focuses on the burden of skin cancer through health services research and nonmelanoma skin cancer outcomes studies.