

Faculty Bio

Joshua Rubin, MD

Assistant Professor, Medicine
Division of Gastroenterology
University of California
San Diego, CA

Joshua Rubin, MD, is an assistant professor of medicine in the division of gastroenterology at the University of California San Diego (UCSD). He received his medical degree at Vanderbilt University School of Medicine in Nashville, TN, graduating with Alpha Omega Alpha honors. Dr Rubin completed his internal medicine residency at David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA and went on to complete a fellowship in gastroenterology at UCSD School of Medicine. Dr Rubin is board certified in gastroenterology and internal medicine.

Dr Rubin, who treats diseases of the esophagus, stomach, small intestine, colon and rectum, pancreas, gallbladder, bile ducts, and liver has diverse research interests centered around quality improvement in the treatment and eradication of Helicobacter pylori (H. pylori) infection and discovering biomarkers to aid in the diagnosis of refractory celiac disease.