

Faculty Bio

Amanda J. Calhoun, MD, MPH

(she/her/hers)

Adult/Child Psychiatry Resident at Yale Child Study Center

Yale School of Medicine

New Haven, CT

Amanda J. Calhoun, MD, MPH, is an Adult/Child Psychiatry Resident at Yale Child Study Center/Yale School of Medicine and is concurrently pursuing a PhD in Yale's Graduate School of Arts & Sciences. Dr. Calhoun graduated from Yale University with a BA in Spanish and received her MD/MPH from Saint Louis University School of Medicine, in St. Louis, Missouri, where she grew up. Dr. Calhoun's research, which focuses on the mental health effects of anti-Black racism on children, has been funded by multiple national awards. Dr. Calhoun also specializes in the effects of medical racism and writes for both academic journals as well as general press and has published in New England Journal of Medicine, TIME magazine, HuffPost, STAT News, Washington Post, BET News, and many others. Dr. Calhoun is also a public speaker, and a consultant and has made multiple national news appearances, most recently on CBS News discussing the rising rates of Black youth suicide.

Twitter handle: @AmandaJoyMD

Professional Instagram: amandajoymd