

Ethel Weld, MD, PhD

Assistance Professor of Medicine
Departments of Clinical Pharmacology and Infectious Diseases
Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine
Baltimore, MD

Dr. Ethel D. Weld is an assistant professor of medicine at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. Her area of expertise is clinical pharmacology.

Dr. Weld received her B.A. from New York University and earned her M.D. from the University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine/Biological Sciences. She completed a fellowship in clinical pharmacology and infectious diseases at Johns Hopkins.