

Julia Blanchette, PhD, RN, BC-ADM, CDCES

Assistant Professor of Medicine, Case Western Reserve University

Nurse Scientist Lead, Diabetes Care and Education

Diabetes Care & Education Specialist, UH Diabetes & Metabolic Care Center

Program Director, Diabetes Research, UH Diabetes & Metabolic Care Center

Julia Blanchette, PhD, is a Nurse Scientist of the Division of Endocrinology and a Diabetes Care and Education Specialist at the University Hospitals Diabetes & Metabolic Care Center. She holds a position at the Case Western Reserve University School of Medicine as an Assistant Professor of Medicine. She completed her Bachelor of Science in Nursing at the Frances Payne Bolton School of Nursing in 2014 and her PhD in Nursing Science in 2019, earning both at Case Western Reserve University.

Dr. Blanchette was the inaugural Association of Diabetes Care and Education Specialists (ADCES) and the Certification Board for Diabetes Care and Education (CBDCE) Post-doctoral Fellow in Integrated Diabetes Management and trained at the University of Utah College of Nursing. She received the national Rising Diabetes Star Award from ADCES in 2019.